Personal:

I am married and have no children but two adorable puppies who make up for it. I love to travel and experience the culture and life context across different countries and societies so I can better understand my world and the humanity that exists within it. I also strongly value education as a human right and a way to develop a civil, critical thinking and caring society that brings benefit to all, and particularly greater equality for women.

I am the daughter of an Anglican priest and have grown up in the church. I value my church and believe strongly in the Anglican Church of Australia. I want my faith and expression of church to be valued and recognised. I want my church to value it and to be inclusive of everyone in society who wants to express their faith through Anglicanism.
